

We welcome an international fact-finding mission...

to Grozny?

The devastation of Grozny is starkly evident when viewed from the surrounding hills, from which Russian artillery rained down relentlessly for more than two months.
[Russian "occupied" Chechnya, February 2000]

Of course not... to Jenin.

One hundred square yards of destruction due to booby-trapped houses during house to house fighting lasting less than a week.

Let military, not bureaucratic "fact finders" examine why Jenin was a target if it believes it must study what happened there.

Prepared as a public service by Despite Everything Efforts

<<http://www.davka.org>>

April 27, 2002

Leaflet 2002:17

